Buckingham Palace and Queen Victoria Memorial. Buckingham Palace, the London residence of the King, faces the processional road of the Mall. Built in 1703, it was enlarged in 1825-7 when it came into Royal occupation, and was refronted in stone in 1913 after designs by Sir Thomas Brock, who designed also the Sicilian marble memorial to Queen Victoria. This is 82 feet in height, is crowned by a "Victory" in bronze and is embellished by fine groups of statuary, bronze reliefs round the base and beautiful fountains.
